

News Release

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

March 19, 2024

Gary Sabol
360-618-6217

Arlington High School Teacher named Journalism Adviser of the Year

ARLINGTON- Arlington High School (AHS) Journalism Teacher Anne Hayman has been named the Washington Journalism Education Association (WJEA) Journalism Adviser of the Year. The Journalism Adviser of the Year is nominated by students in the teacher's class and is selected by the previous year's Journalism Adviser of the Year.

Hayman has been an AHS teacher since 1999 and currently teaches Online News Media, Yearbook, Beginning Journalism, and a section of Careers and Education.

"I try to support my students with whatever they need," said Hayman. "It's nice to know they appreciate the time that's put into the classes, especially with Yearbook."

Hayman was recognized on March 9 at the WJEA state conference at AHS. Two-hundred fifty students and 26 schools were represented at the conference.

###

Arlington High School Teacher Anne Hayman stands with students Mia Guertin and Chloe Falk. Hayman has been named the Washington Journalism Education Association's Journalism Adviser of the Year. (Photo Credit: Shannon Guertin)