Arlington (October 6, 2014) – Snohomish County Fire District 21 brought a fire truck to Kent Prairie and Eagle Creek Elementary Schools during the lunch recesses at the end of September. As one of the largest fire districts in Snohomish County, Fire District 21 provides fire protection, medical and emergency services to the rural area around the City of Arlington, including Trafton, Arlington Heights, Jim Creek, Lake Riley, Cicero, Jordan Road, Edgecomb, and Sisco Heights.

Assistant Chief Branden Bates and a fellow fire fighter came to introduce Fire District 21 to students and wow them with how far they can spray their hoses. The students gathered around them asking questions about what they do and what their job is like.

October 5-11, 2014 marks Fire Prevention Week when fire districts go out to schools to teach students about fire prevention.
